Nature All Around Us Photo Contest

The Natural History Museum of Utah is welcoming Utahns of all ages to participate in a photograph contest to document the wild plants and animals that live within our towns and cities. From colorful flowers that might bloom from a crack in the sidewalk, to deer or larger wildlife that might stray into a neighborhood—our close proximity to Utah's wilderness makes these encounters quite common.

Images can be submitted on the museum's website (<https://nhmu.utah.edu/photocontest>) until September 4th, and will be showcased in an online gallery. Winners will be featured in a special exhibit opening at the museum in Salt Lake City in 2019.
